Pastor's Ponderings

School days, school days
Dear old Golden Rule days
'Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic
Taught to the tune of the hick'ry stick

Who remembers this song? What I mainly remember is this part of the chorus of the song. Each year as the new school year began for me – which was always after Labor Day and not as early as school begins now – it was sung with gleeful smiles on their faces by the adults in my life. “School Days” was written in 1907 by Will Cobb and Gus Edwards. Its subject is of a mature couple looking back sentimentally on their childhood together in primary school.

The children in our lives are beginning a new school year. How are we preparing them for their new adventure? It's an exciting time for some. It's a scary time for others. Learning comes easily for some, while others struggle. In years to come, some will look back on their school days in winsome ways like the lyrics of this song, while others will look back on the whole experience as a long nightmare.

As the church, what can we do to make it a good experience for them? How can we help them so that one day they'll look back on their school days and have good, positive memories? These years are formative for them, and will impact their lives even as adults. It's a different world now. Our children are confronted with things we could not have imagined when we were growing up. And the same is true for their teachers, as well as others who work in the school system. As this new school year begins, let us hold them all close to our hearts and always in our prayers while we look for ways to be actively involved in the educational process of the children in our community.

“As Jesus grew older, he grew wiser too, and became more and more the person God and his parents wanted him to be (Luke 2:52). “ This is what we want for every child – to become more and more the person God wants them to be. Let's help make it happen!

Blessings always,

Virginia
